

CRC's Building Lives Benefit 2016 featured artist

Ross Petty

From London's West end, to the Lido in Paris, to Broadway, Ross Petty has walked the boards as a musical performer and an actor.

But it is here in Toronto where Ross distinguished himself as the villain everyone loves to hate during his annual holiday season pantomimes. A second generation of Canadians is now enjoying the seasonal family musicals Ross produces and stars in at the Elgin Theatre. His imposing stature, snarling baritone and exquisite comic timing lend well to a vast repertoire of villains male and female.

Roles in film and television and voice-over work round out a full schedule for Ross and he never tires of playing the bad guy!

But on Monday, October 24th, 2016, Ross Petty will most definitely be the "good guy" as he lends his support to CRC's 2016 Building Lives Benefit as our Master of Ceremonies.
